Description of Technologies Used

Annyang: a speech recognition library used to implement voice commands

CSS: a programming language that enables the user to control the presentation and style of an HTML document

Express: a technology used to implement the use of a server

Google Traffic API: allows the user to gather and present up-to-date traffic information

Google Profiles API: allows the user to login through google account.

HTML: tool in which to display documents and items in a web browser

JavaScript: a language used to interact with an HTML document using functions

JQuery: a JavaScript library that further helps interaction between JavaScript and HTML

MongoDB: a database program that can be used across platforms

React: a JavaScript library used to help build and maintain user interfaces; used instead of Angular

OpenWeatherMap: online service used to obtain weather data such as temperature and outside conditions

Socket.io: allows for real-time analytics to be used

Responsive Voice API: converts text to speech.